The demand for Family Nurse Practitioners has never been greater.

It ranks so highly, in part, because of the tremendous job satisfaction FNP trained nurses report as they gain more and more autonomy as primary healthcare providers. Family nurse practitioners provide care for patients of all ages and have great flexibility in choosing a specialty. Nurse Practitioners often select positions in family practice, geriatrics, pediatrics, Ob-Gyn, urgent care, internal medicine and primary care.

With the changes in healthcare reform, Family Nurse Practitioners serve a vital role; counseling patients for health prevention, promotion and disease management, as well as seeing, diagnosing and treating patients who would have historically waited weeks to see a physician. In recent years, the role of nurse practitioners has expanded. Along with the increase in duties performed, so too has the need for more qualified graduates risen. Help fill the need with a Master of Science in Nursing - Family Nurse Practitioner degree from Herzing University.

Program length and time to completion may vary based upon the number of approved transfer credits, course load and course availability. Program content may be subject to change. Please check with the registrar's office for any updates, course outlines and graduation requirements.
